PERFECT TARGETS

As news of the havoc wrought by the bombing of the Eder and Mohne dams in Germany by the RAF continues to leak out through neutral sources, despite desperate efforts of the Nazis to suppress it, it becomes plain that no airmen ever had more perfect targets.

To the loss of hydroelectric power and transportation facilities have been added the losses in lives and property inevitable when great quantities of water are released suddenly and flood great industrialized valleys. Floods washed away railroad tracks, power houses and bridges. Aerial photographs of the scenes taken by RAF reconnaissance fliers show incalculable destruction.

The Germans realized the importance of these storage dams. They were heavily guarded. The RAF attacked at night, nineteen planes taking part in the foray. Mines were dropped into the lakes behind the dams. When the bombs reached the gates, it was all over. Nazi defenses accounted for eight raiding planes.

Bombing of water dams is a new enterprise for the RAF. The havoc let loose in Germany by its daring and successful operation is out of proportion to the number of planes involved in the attack. This is the kind of bombing which pays huge dividends, which slows up the German war effort over large areas and which brings home to thousands of German civilians the real effect of total war.

DUCKS AND AIRPLANES

America's fast growing air power is not only making Hitler, Tojo and Mussolini quake but it is forcing waterfowl to seek new haunts. Tom Main of Winnipeg, Canada, general manager of Ducks Unlimited, writes: "There are fewer geese since beginning of air training here. A million blue geese are missing from their traditional rendezvous near Winnipeg. Have they been delayed or perhaps have they detoured the prairies to escape airplanes?"

Ducks Unlimited is an organization of sportsmen of the United States and Canada which is spending money to maintain safe nesting grounds and provide adequate water for North American waterfowl.

It has been reported by hunters in the Southwest that air planes flying up and down the Arkansas Valley every hour of the day have scared many ducks and geese away. Some of the finest shooting waters in the Southwest of former years are no longer frequented by ducks because of airplanes overhead.

In time ducks and geese may become accustomed to planes, but this is doubtful. There may be a revolutionary change in the fly ways of the fowls if they can find a route between Canada and the gulf not cluttered up by the dreaded eagle-like "bird."

There is a definite impression despite the ballyhoo of the inspired radio "commentators," that it's too early to begin talking about suitable uniforms for the world police force.

mit giant A-1 Liberator bombers to hurl tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs, including 2,000-pounders, on the important Jap base at Madang, New Guinea, while long-range fighters strafed nearby enemy positions.

Explosions and fires also were touched off by medium bombers which carried out a night raid on the Langgoer Airbase in the Kel islands between New Guinea and Australia. Other Allied planes bombed and strafed Jap-held observation hill near Mubo, New Guinea, and coastal areas near Arake, New Britain.

In China Japanese forces pressing westward in Hupeh Province towards the provisional capital, Chungking, were meeting increasing resistance. Jap troops advanced northwards from captured Changchun, south of Ichang, Yanztze River port which is the Japs' main operational base in central China, some 250 miles east of the wartime capital. Chinese troops retook a strategic village in the northwest suburbs of Ichang after killing or wounding 600 Japs.

On the Russian front Soviet troops inflicted heavy losses on two German infantry battalions which launched a strong attack along the lower Kuban river. Soviet airmen shot down 67 of a strong force of Nazi planes attempting to bomb Russian positions northeast of Novorossisk, in the same sector.

THAT MAN IS MINE by May Christie

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

Around one o'clock, that fateful Saturday, as he lunched in the officers' club at Opa-Locka, Jim heard over the local radio that a big Hialeah racing scandal was about to break!

The announcer declared: "Hialeah racing fans will be surprised to hear that Steve Gubbins, riding Avery Willard's Stingaree last week in the feature race, has just confessed that he was bribed by the Red Rust gang to pull the favorite in the home stretch, thus losing the race."

"Our local 'elite' will no doubt be stunned to hear that one of their well-known playboys, the suave Hank Bruger, ex-part rumba-dancer entertained in the finest mansions, acted as go-between between the Red Rust gang and the jockey. It seems that the police are also hot on the track of a beautiful blonde who has been seen around Miami Beach and at Hialeah in the company of Hank Bruger."

"As the police are warm on the scent of the pair, we expect to give our listeners further details later."

"Meantime, we commend the prompt action of the stewards of our Hialeah Jockey Club, who are doing their best to keep the finest race track in Florida clean..."

Jim drew a long, painful breath. So his suspicion about the lovely model, Ann, hadn't been so far out, after all!

That it was Ann who had been indicated, was obvious to him.

Her talk before the race, with Hank Bruger, her subsequent warning not to bet on Stingaree, her vanishing from the clubhouse to meet her crook in an isolated spot under the grandstand... Steve, the jockey, racing from the scene, frightened of being caught and identified with them!

It all tallied... What a fool he'd been, to be taken in by her charm and beauty and a certain aura of innocence!

So that was over! Put her out of his mind. Work was the only thing that stayed with one in this tony-turvy world...

But it wasn't so easy to forget Ann.

Her soft musical voice... the look in her dark blue eyes... the way she used her lovely hands... her ineffable grace... a hundred things that lured one.

All studied and practiced, of course. Part of her trade.

But he found himself hoping that she wouldn't be arrested—charged with connivance—that even at the eleventh hour, there was some mistake?

He had an impulse to call her at her apartment. He would like to warn her. But probably it was too late now. Or she might still be sleeping after Vince's farewell party for her on his yacht last Russian losses in the dogfights totaled 29 planes.

German attacks also were repulsed west of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, and in the Donets River basin south of Balakleya.

FASHION PARADE

By Milo Anderson

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Hats are getting bigger and bigger for no apparent reason, but they are very feminine and extremely flattering. Julie Bishop, featured in Warner Bros. "Action in the North Atlantic," wears a smart afternoon hat in lime straw. It is a cartwheel type with low-dipped iron brim. The brim is edged with loops of velvet ribbon in sherry, green, and burnt orange. It is especially effective with Julie's sherry-colored front-drape crepe cocktail dress.

With an extremely feminine dress in black lace, Joan Bennett wears a large plaque in black milan. The straw is used in a skillful combination of black lace and black patterned hair band.

With a summer ensemble in brown and white linen, featuring a boxy jacket of quilted linen in the darker shade, Nancy Coleman wears a very large sailor of the same quilted fabric. The crown is that in name only, for the hat is almost flat. Trim is of white linen in the form of a small, tailored bow.

Joan Leslie, soon to be seen in Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army," is chic in her bolero suit of black rayon shantung that features bracelet-length sleeves and slim gored skirt. The blouse is of handkerchief linen, with the popular froil-front. With her suit, the young actress wears a large black milan with fairly high, square crown. The brim dips ever so slightly in front and in back.

As a perfect accessory for her striped lightweight wool suit in shocking pink and white, Faye Emerson wears a white pique platter hat with low, rounded crown. A swath of pink veiling comes from either side of the crown to encircle the face.

Very smart with her summer prints is Loretta Young's straight-on sailor. The high crown and half the brim is covered with white grosgrain ribbon, gathered into loops about the base of the brim. Rough straw makes up the outer portion of the brim that swings straight around her head.

BUTTONS STAGING A RETURN THIS SPRING, FEMININE WARDROBE

By Mrs. Katharine G. Moon

(Home Economics Representative)
Some homemakers who are remodeling or making new garments for themselves or members of their families are not finding exactly the kind of zippers they want to use. Where this is true, there are some excellent wartime substitutes.

Metals have gone to war so fewer zippers are being manufactured. To take their place are buttons, hooks and eyes, and snaps. Satisfactory packets and other fastenings can be made without zippers, and many of the ready-made dresses this spring are zipperless. Some dresses may be without plackets; drawstrings and belts hold the extra fullness in place.

Buttons are important this year in any wardrobe. Buttons are tailored, gay, colorful, and decorative. When choosing buttons, consider the type of garment on which they will be used. Pearl or washable buttons are most satisfactory for cotton dresses. Plastic buttons are better for garments that do not make frequent trips to the washbasin.

To take care of buttons every homemaker should have a button box to hold those that are cut off worn out garments and any extra ones not used. Some old buttons make interesting cuff links and other give a new look to a collar when sewed along the edge.

SAVES HITLER MAY FLEE TO SAFETY IN IRELAND

By International News Service
ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(INS)—The flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland was really an attempted escape to Ireland, Eric Underwood, English publicist, writer and traveler, declared in St. Louis City recently.

Ireland, too, is the one place to which Hitler may escape to safety, he added.

Underwood formerly was director of British Civil Service. At one time he served as tutor to King Leopold of the Belgians. He is the editor and author of standard works on painting and sculpture and on the Russian language and literature.

OUR VICTORY GARDEN

"Man With Hoe" Is "Man Behind the Gun"

By Jane Cosman

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 27 — (INS)—Victory gardens will supply your table with food this year, but the vegetables need a little feeding themselves. Fertilizer is the answer, and for best results, it should be sown before you sow the seeds.

Your choice of fertilizer depends on several factors—the type of fertilizer easily available and the type your soil requires. If you're going to be scientific about the matter, a soil analysis, performed by your local victory committee or agricultural experiment station, will tell you exactly what your soil requires.

Use Plenty of Manure

Plenty of manure is the best possible fertilizer, but commercial ones are available which will serve your garden well. Well-decayed manure only should be used and it should be applied before the gardens are spaded or plowed for best results. Spread a one or two inch layer over the soil and work it into the planting is started. Use about one pound to every two square feet. If you're using dehydrated manure, apply one-fourth to one-half pound to every two square feet.

If you're using commercial fertilizer without manure, you should keep up the organic content of the soil by spading in leaf mold, compost or similar materials.

Broadcasting commercial fertilizer is the easiest way to use it, but it's also the most wasteful way.

Use of Fertilizer

For most efficient use, try this method—use a hoe and scoop out a wide furrow about two inches deep and two inches from the line where you sow seeds or set plants. This is done after the garden has been worked for planting. Apply the fertilizer in the furrow, making a bank three to four inches wide. You'll need about one pound to 30 feet of row.

Mix the fertilizer with the soil and cover about two inches deep. This can be done partly by opening up the planting row. You should be careful, however, not to let the fertilizer touch the seeds or plant roots.

Special Fertilizer Available

There's a special Victory Garden commercial fertilizer available this year through arrangements made jointly by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the War Production Board. It's available in 5 to 100-pound packages. The contents are 3 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphoric acid, and 7 per cent potash. You'll find this a valuable addition to your garden, even if you have been successful in obtaining manure for your vegetable plot.

Nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash are the staples of a plant's diet, and they're required in the largest quantities in your garden's menu.

Phosphorus makes strong stems, good roots, as well as colors and ripens fruit. Potassium, usually added in the form of potash, is good for the stems and roots, and also helps add the delicious flavors you're anticipating from your vegetables.

Nitrogen, the most easily lost of the food elements, is essential to good leaf production and in the production of abundant fruit.

Standard all-over requirements of plant food for a small garden are four pounds per 100 square feet—a garden 10 by 10 feet. This amount will not harm your vegetables, even though the soil is rich enough to require no additional food. It will also correct any but the most drastic soil deficiency. One quart will feed about 50 square feet and one pint, 25 square feet.

On very small plots, figure about one rounded tablespoon per square foot.

Lime may be vitally needed in your garden, and make the difference between success and failure. It improves soil texture, as it makes clay soils coarse and sandy soils more compact. It also aids in making food elements in the soil more available to the plants.

Lime Reduces Acidity

Lime reduces soil acidity which is most prevalent in hill regions in the gritty soils and in wooded sections where soils are composed of leaf molds.

If your soil needs lime, the quickest way to apply it is to dust on hydrated lime, at the rate not over one pound per 100 square feet. It should be applied at least a week after other fertilizer is applied, and a week before the seeds are planted.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

THE art of seasoning, that has made French housewives famous the world over, has become vastly important in American cookery as a means of offsetting menu monotony during wartime. A bit of chives cooked with the beans or green peas, a deftly seasoned sauce for a cheap cut of meat, or a full-bodied soup with elusive flavor will all help to keep the family from realizing how frequently the same foods are appearing on the table.

The French housewife, too, has the trick of using every last scrap of the vegetable or meat she is cooking and turning left-overs into important dishes. Here again, the American homemaker can take a tip or two from her housewife.

This week the A & P Food Service for Homemakers reports there is a little more smoked pork available at meat counters. Arrival of spring lamb in a couple of weeks will help somewhat to ease the shortage of this particular meat. There are a few ducks available. Asparagus is attractively priced this week, as are beans, carrots, greens, mushrooms, onions, pear and spinach.

The following menus are designed to help you plan your Sunday dinner:

MR. FIXIT' COMES TO THE AID OF THE BUSY HOME MAKER

By Mrs. Katherine G. Moon

(Home Economics Representative) Spring housecleaning usually shows up many things in need of repair. The ideal time to do the necessary mending is right now in order that there is no loss of time or effort.

It's a wise plan to jot down the type of repair and where it is needed. In this way no time is wasted in hunting when ready to do the mending.

Loose knobs are annoying, but they can easily be fixed. When the knob on a drawer is fastened with an inside nut and it becomes loose, no amount of tightening will hold it firm. What is needed are metal or heavy cardboard washers between the nut and the inside of the drawer. Knobs that are screwed into the drawer front require a different treatment when they become loose. Take out the knobs, fill the holes with plastic wood and allow it to partly harden before replacing the screws.

Creaking floors due to the loosening of boards are another annoyance. To eliminate the creaking, put a thin wedge between the flooring and the beam. If the underside cannot be reached to place the wedge, it will have to be fastened from the top.

Drawers and doors that stick or won't close because the wood has swelled or the joints have loosened are easily remedied. Sometimes rubbing paraffin or soap on the edges will allow them to move freely. If this doesn't do the trick, sandpaper the edges or plane off enough so they will move freely.

Partitions in drawers where small kitchen utensils are kept are a convenience many homemakers appreciate. Even the amateur can put in the partitions by using heavy cardboard although thin boards are more satisfactory.

The cellar stairs can be made more safe by putting up a hand-rail, having the stairway well lighted especially the top and bottom step and repairing any broken steps.

LEWISBURG, Pa.—(INS)—Miss Jean S. Richards, of Westfield, N. J., has become the first woman to serve as president of the Bucknell University student-faculty congress.

On June 7th

DISTRICT CONFERENCE

"War Born Problems" will be the theme of the Southeastern District Regional Conference of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women to be held Monday, June 7, 1943, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia.

Post-war problems in Education, Economics, and the International scene will be discussed at the morning session which starts at 11 a. m. Three separate study groups will meet to discuss each topic.

Dr. Paul Crossman, director of the State Bureau of Instruction, is scheduled to be the speaker at the discussion group on Post War Problems in Education. Recent legislation, having to do with Educational problems, that was passed at the last session of the State Legislature, will be discussed by the Hon. Kenneth Lichtenwalter, of Lehigh County, Majority Leader in the House.

"Preventing a Post War Depression" is the topic for the second discussion group meeting at 11 a. m. Mark James, State Director of the newly-created State Post-War Planning Commission, and Glenn Saxson, president of the Pennsylvania Economy League, will be the speakers.

State Senator Weldon Heyburn, of Delaware County, will discuss the Bills covering this subject that were passed at the last session of the Legislature.

"International Participation" will be discussed at the third study group by Dr. Merrill E. Bristol Twp. Man Sentenced To Pay $50 Fine and Costs

George DeHaven, who worked on the Matthews farm and stole the stationery, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday. They were both said to be intoxicated when they made a deal with Fox to buy the stationery. In the trial of the Fox case, both Knappenberger and DeHaven were called as witnesses by the Commonwealth.

Judge Keller fined both men $10 and directed that they pay the costs and serve one month to 23 months in the Bucks County Prison.

Richard Schofield, 24, of Pennington, N. J., formerly employed at a Bristol airplane plant, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of adultery which the Commonwealth accepted. He was originally charged with rape, adultery, assault and battery with intent to commit rape and assault and battery.

Judge Keller sentenced Schofield to pay a fine of $5 and costs, and serve 4 months to 1 year in the Bucks County Prison.

Schofield, who has been married four years and has a three-year-old youngster, formerly came from Philadelphia. His wife was in court yesterday and told Judge Keller that she would "stick by him in this case and believed that he would never again get into trouble."

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Keller told Schofield that he was "getting off very easy as a result of the Commonwealth agreeing to drop the more serious charges against him."

The last case on trial at the May term of criminal court is that of the Commonwealth against Charles Keeler, charged with involuntary manslaughter, growing out of the death of Raymond Bitzer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bitzer, of near Doylestown. In an automobile accident on the Lackawanna Trail on March 26, 1942.

Keller, driving a furniture van between Revere and Oltville, struck a motorcycle that was ridden by Bitzer, a student at Lafayette College who was on his way back to school after a short visit in Doylestown. The case is being tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

WAR WORKERS ROUGH HANDS

HERE IS A BETTER WAY TO TREAT THEM. Factory work is hard on the hands, but a nightly application of this new, pleasant, greaseless, vanishing white ointment works wonders while you sleep. For better than a lotion as it is antiseptic, goes farther and does not spill if upset. Not just a skin softener but a healing, pain relieving ointment. Developed especially for the boys in the armed services this greaseless ointment is offered the folks back home. The name is VICTORY OINTMENT. Clip this ad to remind you to get a jar today.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor

We ask thy forgiveness, O God and Father, for having failed so often to use the talents which thou hast given unto us in accordance with the way in which they should be used. There is so much that we can do which we fail to do. There are so many opportunities for service which we completely ignore. There are so many responsibilities which we can assume in the work of thy Kingdom which we deliberately blind ourselves to. Open our eyes, that we might behold the things to be done. Let us consecrate ourselves to lives of more fruitful service, that in the living of them they might be done. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

GRAND THEATRE

A powerful triangular romance in a modern setting but with an eerie lycanthropic legend as its basis, provides the plot for the new picture at the Grand Theatre, "Cat People," with Simone Simon, Kent Smith and Jane Randolph in the leading roles.

Lycanthropy is the belief that under certain conditions human beings can change into animals of the "werewolf" variety. In this case the legend is of Serbian origin, and the "cat people" are women who, when their passions are aroused, transform themselves into panthers and claw their lovers to death.

RITZ THEATRE

When "Tomstone—The Town

Too Tough to Die," the Western adventure film, comes today to the Ritz Theatre, moviegoers will see in action one of the boldest outlaws that ever packed a gun in the old Southwest.

The outlaw is "Curly" Bill, a desperado whose roaring six-guns brought terror wherever he went.

Local Boys Will Cross Bats With Westinghouse Sunday Evening

HEISLER TO PITCH

Manager Mulholland Looking For A New Outfielder

The Bristol A. A. will travel to Esington on Sunday evening to play the Westinghouse Electric nine in a twilight game at 6.15.

Lonnie Heisler, the A. A. speed ball artist, will work for the local club with Jesse Van Zant behind the plate while the Westinghouse Club will depend on big Jim Duffy, formerly of the Pittman, N. J. Club, with Turner, formerly of Mayfair Club, doing the receiving.

Norman Tetterer, the A. A. outfielder, left on Tuesday for Camp Dix, N. J., to train for the U. S. Army.

Manager Mulholland is looking for to become the first conference around for an outfielder to replace Tetterer. George Ritter and the Harbetta brothers played good ball in the first games last Sunday.

CONFIDENT HE CAN REACH 1,000-PT. GOAL

MECHANICSBURG, Pa., May 27 (INS)—If Herbert (Jeb) Stewart, rangy center on the Mechanicsburg high school basketball quintet, plays next season, he is confident of reaching his goal of 1000 points.

The towering senior has flipped 822 points through the hoops in 45 games over a three-year span for an average of 14.94 points a game, which is good in any man's league.

Jeb says he didn't do so well during his freshman year when he played for the Chambersburg club of the Southern Pennsylvania Conference. Although he won the individual scoring championship of the loop, he lamented the fact that he scored "only" 231 tallies. They were spread over 20 games for an average of 11.55 per tilt.

His eagle eye gained him scoring laurels again in his sophomore year when he played for the Trojans. In 18 games, the lanky center registered 322 points averaging 17.88 markers a game.

This year he shattered a new record player to gain the individual scoring title three years in a row. His last title was won playing on the Mechanicsburg five for Coach Johnny Frederick's Wildcats. The third crown was given him for scoring 269 points in 17 games for an average of 15.82 a game.

HELLO, WHAT'S THIS?

SAN FRANCISCO (INS)—A California woman today became owner and manager of the world's smallest independently operated telephone system. She is Ruth Saunders Jones, who was granted permission by the State Railroad Commission to take full control of the Tuolumne Exchange Company, a system with 15 miles of poles and wires.

WOUNDED SERVICE MEN MAY GO TO PENN STATE

By International News Service

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (INS)—Wounded service men may soon go to Pennsylvania State College.

Penn State has been selected as a center for speech training in the government's rehabilitation program, according to Dr. Herbert Koepf-Baker, associate professor of speech.

The college will train speech specialists for service in hospitals and will also conduct classes for men with facial injuries who have to learn how to speak all over again. Booby mines and anti-personnel bombs are raising the casualty list with head injuries. Although plastic surgery can satisfactorily repair the wounds in a large majority of cases, these men cannot earn a living until they have been rehabilitated socially as well as physically.

NEW CLEANING AGENT DISCOVERED FOR ARMY

By International News Service

ATLANTA, Ga. (INS)—Headquarters, Fourth Service Command, reports a new cleaning agent being used by American fighting men around the world.

According to claims, the compound, known as a cleaning detergent, makes water wetter, cleans without making a collection of insoluble suds and does the job quicker than ordinary soap.

Furthermore, this soapless soap, which is made with a base of petroleum or coal tar, may be used in soft, alkaline or hard water and even in ocean salt water.

Working with water to form a penetrating solution, it rapidly reaches into the fibers of the clothing, removing greasy particles and dirt quickly and without danger of shrinking woolen fabrics, reports say.

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (INS)—Workmen razing two century-old buildings in the Allentown business district discovered they were constructed without nails. The frame houses, built completely of wood, were held together by notched solid oak beams measuring 14 inches in thickness.
